WESTCHESTER COUNTY.

MOUNT VERNON.

Bethlehem Commandery, Knights Templar, of Mount Vernon, was especially honored on Thursday night with visiting delegations of York, Ivanhoe and other bodies, from New-York City; Yonkers Commandery and Westchester Commandery, of Sing Sing. The reason of the visit was to witness the work of the red cross degree in full Jewish and the work of the red cross degree in full Jewish and Persian costumes. After the degree was conferred the visitors were invited to a dinner, where short addresses were made by past commanders and others. Those who had recently seen the work of the Easton (Penn) Commandery declared that the exemplification of the work by Bethlehem was equally as good as that done at Easton, and in some paris was more effective. The Crescent Club gave a "smoker" in its well-appointed club-house last night, for which a large number of invitations were issued. The entertainment was furnished by Professor Water and Thomas Valentine, banjoist and humorist. The club has a large list banjoist and humorist. The club has a large list of active members, and its popularity is shown by the increased applications for membership. A give club is about to be organized as auxiliary of the club.

YONKERS.

The large increase in the volume of business at the piers in Yonkers makes an extension of the existing facilities imperative, and plans are under con-sideration for affording the desired relief. The river front of Yonkers is owned by individuals, firms and corporations, and the only wharf privilege that is controlled by the city is the public pier at Mainst. The conflicting interests involved in this diversity of ownership have heretofore made it impossible to agree on any practical measure for relief, but the situation has reached such a pass that action cannot be much longer deferred. Superintendent Lockwood, of the Waterworks, reports that the New-York City District Water Supply Company has nearly completed laying its mains from the north line of the city to the rock cut in Yonkers-ave, east of Kimball-ave, and the water is now in the mains to the point where the twenty-four inch pumping main crosses the Mile Square Road and can in a few days be in the mains to Kimball-ave. The third union meeting of the societies comprising the Yonkers Christian Endeavor Union was held last night at the First Reformed Church. There was a large attendance, including a delegation from Mount Vernon. The principal address was by the Rev. Dr. B. B. Tyler, of the Church of the Disciples, New-York, who spoke on "The Problem of the Unemployed." and corporations, and the only wharf privilege that

NEW-JERSEY.

JERSEY CITY.

The police of the Fifth Precinct of Jersey City were informed yesterday that Mrs. Mary Matthews, of No. 42 Greenville-ave., had not been seen for several days, and as she had been sick it was feared she was dead. A sister of Mrs. Matthews, who had come from Harlem and got no answer to repeated knocks, asked that the door be forced. This was done, and Mrs. Matthews was found dead in bed. She was sixty years old and had a dissipated son named Frederick, and as she owned the house in which she lived, and two lots, a story was speedily circulated that the son had killed her, he having been at the house until midnight. The police say there is no truth in the story because Mrs. Matthews had been dead for two days, and the house was securely fastened on the Inside. Death resulted from natural causes.

The members of the Jersey City Street and Water Board pleaded not guity, and gave $1,500 hall each, before Judge Lippincott, yesterday, on the corrected indictments, charging malfeasance in office. They were indicted a second time on the same charges, because the first indictments were believed to be defective. As before, the Commissioners reserved the right to demur or quash. The Commissioners and their bondsman are President John F. Madden, Henry Lembeck, bondsman; W. H. Cook and Charles Somers, Hugh Dugan, bondsman; Stephen Yoe, Matthew Forster bondsman; Edward Dugan, James Coyle bondsman.

He was attacked on March 14 with pains in the head, and was compelled to give up business and take to his bed. On Wednesday last there were symptoms of paralysis, and the malady soon affected the entire right side of his body. There is scarcely-any hope of his recovery.

ELIZABETH.

A falling wall at Elizabeth yesterday buried three masons, a carpenter and a laborer beneath it. They were dug out alive, but it is thought William Headley, a mason, will die, as his leg is broken, his skull fractured and he is injured about the back. He is forty-two years old, and has a wife and eight children. The others hurt were Robert Irwin, cut about the head and face, and arm bruised; James Furey, scalp wounds and smashed fingers; James Kerr, hips badly crushed and head and face cut and bruised, and Alexander Kerr, face and hands cut. The Kerrs are sons of the contractor who had the job of taking down the wall. A falling wall at Elizabeth yesterday buried three

Yours truly, MICHAEL MASTROPIETRO."

The Banco Lombardo was established three years ago, and has been patronized by all the men and women of "Little Italy" who had any money to deposit. They were thrifty, though poor, and the best estimates accessible among the ex-cited victims last night show that the banker held about $18,000 belonging to his confiding countrymen. He had lent about $700, but his son-in-law, whom he swindled out of $600, has put attachments on these loans. There are sixty-eight of them in all. Suspicion was first directed against Mastropietro by the fact that Francisce Cincello, who had $600 on deposit, could not get his money. He caused Mastropietro's arrest four weeks ago, and the Grand Jury found a true bill against the accused man. The trial was set down for Thursday, but Mastropietro did not appear, and his bondsman, Dominico Dominizio, was instructed to produce him yesterday or pay the amount of his bond, which was $1,600, into court. Yesterday there was a wild rush to the Banco Lombardo, and when Mastropietro's letter in the window was read there were amany threats against his life.

It is not believed that he has gone to Milan, but it is believed that he is in hiding in this city. His countrymen, however, will take no proceedings against him. They say that if they can find him, and he does not return their money, they will settle with him in the fashion of their own country. Mastropietro left behind him a wife and seven children. The bankbooks which he issued declared that his bank occupied four buildings, but it was in the basement of one. whom he swindled out of $600, has put attachments

Freed from the weight, the horse dashed forward, only to be caught by Policeman Gorman, mounted, when it had reached Ninety-fourth-st.

An examination showed that Mrs. Young, although badly shaken up and frightened, sustained only slight injuries. She was removed to her home in a carriage.

Mrs. Levy gave evidence yesterday similar to that which she gave in the trial of her suit. She was corroborated in regard to the facts of the marriage. After a motion to dismiss the complaint had been denied Mrs. Levy was called as a witness for the defence. She said she was willing to live with her husband if he would give her a proper home and treat her as a man should treat his wife. She said she was still devoted to her husband and loved him dearly. She was willing to go West with him.

JUDGE GAYNOR ON THE POWERS OF POLICE. The employes of the company are on a strike, and they have assembled in front of grogshops where the beer of the company is sold in order to keep customers away by warning them. In granting the writ Judge Gayner said: "It is no offence to lotter, lounge or play in the streets. It would be unendurable to allow policemen to seize any person or abduct a child who is standing, walking, playing or taking leisure in the streets simply because the policeman is pleased to call it lounging. It seems incredible that under free institutions and laws that jealously guard the liberty of the citizen a magistrate could hold any one, however humble, under a complaint like this. It does not state a single fact even tending to show any violation of law, much less criminal offence. I would suggest that the matter be called to the attention of the General Term of the Supreme Court, which has the power to call to account and to remove magistrates. And if the attention of the Commissioner of Police be called to the matter, I cannot help believing that he would stop such acts of arbitrary power on the part of policemen. The fact that a man happens to be a policeman gives him no more right arbitrarily and unlawfully to treat people than any other citizen has. The prisoner is discharged."

ANOTHER SON FOR COMMODORE MORGAN.

The many friends of Commodore E. D. Morgan. of the New-York Yacht Club, are delighted at the advent of another son and heir on Wednesday even-ing. The Commodore wore a smile of triumph and lay to his downtown friends. He now flies three "cold plunks," to use the language of Coxy's Army. Governor E. D. Morgan, who is enrolled in the list of honored "War Governors" who devoted the services of their States to the preservation of the National Union in the Civil War, left a peculiar will. After a liberal distribution to charity and benevolence, he put about $3.00.00 of his property on trust for the henefit of his son. The income was to be given to him, and on the base of three living helrs for each one $25.00 was to be paid over to the voting man. Commodore Merma has within five years been able to show one girl and two boys, but the hast evidence of the mutual affection of the parents closes the possibility of additional dividends from John T. Terry and Soien Humphreys, the surviving trustees of the Morgan estate. The bravery of the young commolore and the happiness of his home are expected by his many friends to shame any false modesty in the "Four Hundred" with regard to the perpetuation of the closest these of domestic life.

Truax, of the Supreme Court, On September 5, 180, Pollesman Thomas Gleason, while in performance of the dotter. was run down by a cab owned by Lectory & Coptroprietors of the Buckincham Stables, and driven by Thomas White. The horse that was attached to the vehicle, it is alleged it by the plaintiff, was running at such a high rate of speed that he knocked Gasson senselves. The cab passed over the policeman's body. He was removed to the sidewalk, where he died pefore an ambulance reached him.
The plaintiff a litorneys, E. J. Nathan and Assistant. District Attorney. Wellman, contend that Glesson was there in performance of a specific duty, and that when the driver of the cab saw the policeman in the roadway he should have pulled up his horse. White, the driver, says that there was a wagon ahead of him, and that when it pilled out of his way the policeman dodgred through, and thus he had no chance to stop his horse, though he made every effort to do so. The testinony of the witnesses in the case was conflicting. The defence claim that the policeman was culpably negligent, and that they were not liable for his death.
The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff for $5.000.
